Dear Fellow Texans:

Today on Martin Luther King Jr. Day, we reflect upon the long-lasting legacy of justice and compassion modeled by Dr. King's pivotal contributions to the civil rights movement.

More than 50 years later, Dr. King's simple and profound message still rings true: do unto others as you would have them do unto you. His mission to unify the nation through respect and equality serves as an important reminder today that our words and actions have a tremendous impact on those around us.

As an irreplaceable pillar of his community, the power of Dr. King's example continues to guide this country as we consider how we can carry out his dream. The ongoing journey to make his vision a reality requires patience, devotion, and courage.

Honoring the vision of Dr. King is a practice we can each choose to walk in by extending understanding and respect to those who may hold a different opinion.

I will continue to heed Dr. King's message of service, understanding, and mutual respect as I represent Texans from all walks of life in the United States Senate.

God Bless you all, and may God continue to bless the Great State of Texas.

Sincerely,
